I met Charles (Cha-Cha) Shaw in the church where he so faithfully attends. While watching him sitting there playing his trumpet so vehemently I couldn't help but feel his soul and his strong rhythmic vibrations.

He started in music at the age of five, influenced by his mother and uncle. Louis Armstrong and Miles Davis also helped encourage his musical career. He also took piano and tap-dancing lessons. He played from fifth grade on through high school. He attended Oakland City Merritt College and then went to Berkley High Adult School. He then moved to New York and went to Harnets School of Music.
