Tommy Brown: Gospel Music
with the Gospel Now Singers and the Gospel Vessels

RECORDED AND PRODUCED BY MARC D. PEVAR
Raised to the music from childhood and knowing that they are helping other people transcend the problems of everyday life, when the Brown family sings, the feeling is deep, genuine and free. Three of the sisters are raising children of their own. Soon there may be three generations of the family singing together, spreading their musical Gospel mission through this unique vehicle.

The Gospel Vessels are accompanied on piano and by the voice of Rev. Brown in these selections. Their regular accompanist is Otis Marbury. The other musicians are presently working and will be announced in the future.

The Gospel Vessels are the group for whom Rev. Brown has been aFOK

Gospel singer for over 20 years. They are professional musicians who are also skilled in the art of songwriting. Their music is both spiritual and secular, incorporating a variety of genres such as jazz, blues, and soul.

The group's repertoire includes traditional Gospel standards as well as original compositions written by Rev. Brown. Their performances are known for their energy and enthusiasm, as well as their ability to connect with audiences of all ages.

The Gospel Vessels have performed at numerous events and venues, including churches, community centers, and festivals. They are dedicated to sharing their music and message of hope and inspiration with others.

Gospel singing has a long history in the African American community, with roots tracing back to the slave trade. It is a form of spiritual expression that combines elements of African drumming, call-and-response patterns, and storytelling.

The Gospel Vessels continue to honor this tradition while incorporating modern musical influences. Their performances are not only entertaining but also deeply moving, as they inspire listeners to find hope and purpose in their lives.
